Devour

Words & Art by Bunny Luz

A sensory taste that starts in the mouth and then moves on the rest of the body

And then moves to the rest of the body

Permeating
every cell,
every nerve
ending, really,

We can be led by the tongue

Towards consequences that we need to confront.

We are what we eat.

I was always a picky eater.

When I was a child, I wanted the same things.

Over and over and sometimes in sequence.

When I got older, my tongue became more exploratory.

Danger.

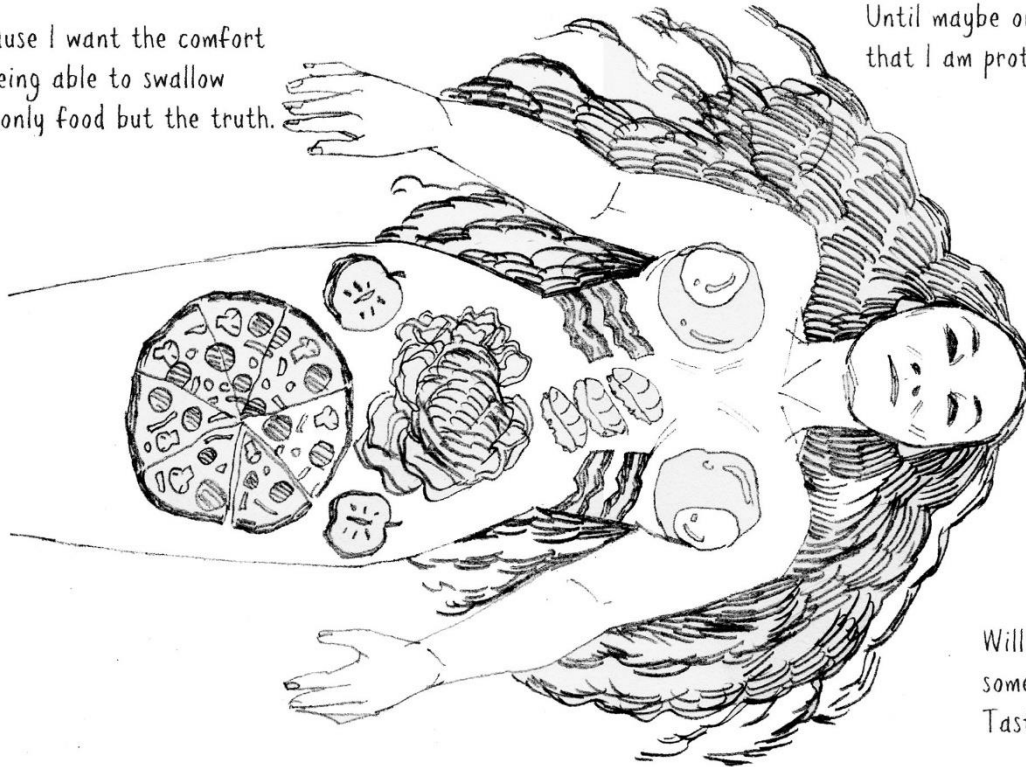

Suspense.

Confidence.

Then came a time
when I couldn't chew-- still can't

Because I want the comfort of being able to swallow
Not only food but the truth.

Until maybe one day, the knowledge that I am protecting my flavor

Will pay off when someone decides to Taste me.
